

GREENER TOWNS

ArtBank Indigenous Landscape

ArtBank, a contemporary art space in McCook, Nebraska, partnered with PlantNebraska to replace nonnative shrubs with young native plants, refreshing the exterior landscape of their building. The new planting adds beauty, elegance, and curb appeal that draws pedestrians and passersby to discover the gallery and its collection, including works by indigenous artists. The project directly serves the community by enhancing a cultural hub, aligning with ArtBank's mission of art as unique and renewable energy, and reinforcing the connection between native landscapes and the indigenous artistic traditions celebrated inside.
